Name: Father Don Doll, S.J.

Professor of Journalism and Mass Communications at Creighton University, Father Doll is shown with many of the photos he produced. The Creighton faculty member and well-known photographer is sitting on an iceberg to commemorate the photos he took in the Arctic Circle. The globe-trotting honoree is a Jesuit priest who has taught at Creighton University since the early 1970s. He had at the time recently exhibited his photographs at Joslyn Museum and published a book, "Vision Quest," which also was the name of a Public Broadcasting program produced about him. National Geographic is one of the magazines in which his photographs were used.
